Clarus Capital embraces Evolute technology

Zurich asset manager Clarus Capital Group Ltd is taking a leap into the digital age to continue providing its demanding clients with high-quality, personalized services. After an intensive evaluation phase, it decided to adopt the Evolute platform. This decision was largely based on the platform's reporting functions, fixed interfaces with custodian banks and integrated portfolio management system.

Dramatic changes have been sweeping through the asset management industry for some time. Digitization, financial technology – known as “fintech” for short – and technology platforms are hot topics everywhere in the world, including Switzerland. Clarus Capital Group Ltd started addressing these issues early on and began scouring the local fintech market for a solution that would enable the firm to continue focusing on growing and protecting its clients’ assets without restrictions.

It decided to partner with Evolute Ltd, a Zurich-based fintech provider. Clarus Capital was particularly interested in an integrated portfolio management system and customizable client reports that conform to its corporate design guidelines – both key strengths of Evolute’s technology. The existence of interfaces for future data communications with custodian banks also played a significant role in the decision-making process.

The innovative asset manager, established in 2011, has put personalized customer service and tailored advisory services at the core of everything it does. And by partnering with fast-growing start-up Evolute Ltd, it can stay true to this vision, even in the digital age.
